THE 6th WAR LOAN

DEEP in their hearts everybody knows this war isn't over. How can it be when the most savage, most brutal enemy of all—the Jap—is still running wild over thousands of square miles of the earth's surface!

The 6th War Loan Drive is another important step in pushing him back to where he belongs. Again your individual quota is at least one extra $100 War Bond—and more if you can. When the Victory Volunteer calls on you at your home or wherever you work, buy to the limit. Every fighting man wants you to!

Many Enjoy Club's Thanksgiving Dinner

Way back in the days of which Riley wrote, it was "Down to Old Aunt Mary's" for the thrill of Thanksgiving to most folk. But today, "Down to the IAC for Thanksgiving Dinner" seems to be the popular preference of many Club folk, as is evidenced by the lay-out of pictures on the opposite page. Though the Weather Man's files record the day as dark and gloomy, it was clear and sailing at the IAC. Let's look in on each picture and see "who was who" and "what was what" among the Club's dining guests on Thanksgiving Day.

1. The three Foxes, Mr. and Mrs. Ray C., and their little grandson, Raymond Francis, were photographed before going to the Dining Room. Seems that the IAC is getting into the blood of the third generation, too . . . for first it was the Ray Foxes, then their son, David, and now his little son, Raymond Francis.

2. These two characters don't need any introduction . . . for without them, what would Thanksgiving Day be?

3. This was the first dinner out and the first visit to the Club for little William Brennan-Smith who is in his mother's arms. The family of J. Albert Smith were "snapped" as they came down from their Thanksgiving dinner. Said Mrs. Smith . . . "The baby behaved himself so well that we're going to have to go out more often. He had more fun playing with the apples and oranges on the table." As for the young gentleman in the front, J. Albert Smith, Jr., he took it all like a grown-up young man would.

4. For years now, McFarland Benham has been entertaining his family at the Club at Thanksgiving. And this year was no exception. Seated around the table, from left to right, are Thomas Tussing, Mrs. Hal T. Benham, McFarland Benham, Mrs. Violet Sheppard, Hal T. Benham, Mrs. Henry Benham, and Mrs. Thomas Tussing (Jean Benham).

5. Capt. Hugh Quigley, house tenant representative of the military and navy men stationed in Indianapolis, who could not get home in Pennsylvania for a family Thanksgiving dinner, chose the day to learn to play Squash. After playing for the first time, the Captain, a veteran tennis and golf player, kept repeating . . . "Say, that game's alright. It's fine . . .

it's fine." (Hence, this is an advance notice to the old-time Squash players.)

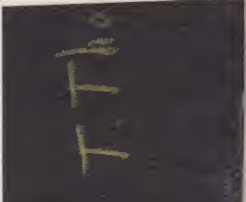

6. Thanksgiving dinner at the Club is a traditional "Must" on the social calendar of the Ralph Knodes, for they've entertained around the Turkey table ever since the Club opened. This year the party included the following, from left to right: Mrs. Nettie Mendenhall, Mrs. Ralph Knode, Mrs. Mamie Hyde, Miss Eva B. Heizer, Mrs. H. C. Knode, Mr. Ralph B. Knode, Mrs. E. B. Jackson, Michael Phillips, Mrs. Bernice Phillips, Mr. H. H. Jackson, and Mrs. David Boswell.

7. Lt. Col. Glen W. Lee was host to this Thanksgiving dinner party who obligingly lined up for their "snap" in front of the elevator doors—left to right: Mrs. Glen W. Lee, John Hoopingarner, Mrs. Robinson Hitchcock, Col. Robinson Hitchcock, Mrs. William Miller, Lt. Col. Glen W. Lee, and the two Hitchcock children, Lucinda Lee and Tate.

8. Frankfort, Indiana, isn't so far away . . . especially when a Turkey dinner a la IAC waits at the other end of the trip. The Fowlers of Frankfort brought this party to the Club for Thanksgiving dinner . . . left to right: Miss Fannie Sands, Mrs. Nora Lee Kramer, Mrs. Thomas Heth and daughter, Anne Christine, Mrs. Max Fowler, and Max Fowler.

9. One little, two little, three little Duffys, plus their Mom and Pop, sat around the table in true family style for their Thanksgiving repast at the Club. They are, from left to right, Frank, Mr. George H. Duffy, Rita, Mrs. George H. Duffy, and Kate.

10. From Linton, Indiana, came Paul Fry to entertain at dinner the following guests, left to right: Ira Rogers, Miss Jane Fry, Mr. Fry, and Mrs. Ira Rogers.

Mrs. Santa Again Stars at Dolphins' Annual Christmas Luncheon

It isn't because men are rationed that Mrs. Warren Winter plays "Santa" for the Dolphins most every year. But combine the fact that she's a Dolphin herself, her smile is so typically "Santa-like," and her name is most "Wintery," and you will know the reason. Undoubtedly she was the guest of honor again this year at the Dolphin's annual Christmas luncheon held at the Pool's side, December 13th.

The long luncheon table was attractively decorated with Christmas colors and motifs by Mrs. Robert Imes, Dolphin president, and Mrs. Wendell Georgen. The menu was planned by Mrs. Clifford Voges. An exchange of gifts, with Mrs. Santa as M. C., was enjoyed by the members and their guests.

Mrs. Harold Sweeney has been elected secretary to replace Mrs. J. E. Templeton who resigned. A new idea for keeping the Dolphins' records and publicity in scrap-book form has been conceived, and Mrs. Robert Parlette will be in charge of the book.
